

Anatomy of the Hoof in Donkeys

A. Hifny and N.A. Misk

Abstract:

A detailed anatomical structure of wall, sole and frog of the hoof and corium of the foot was described. This study revealed that the hoof of the donkeys differs from that of the horse as regards to the dimensions of the hoof, the slope of the wall, size and density of horny tubes and the number of the horny lamellae.

Published In:

Assiut Veterinary Medical Journal , 11 , 22