Abstract:

The aim of the research is to identify some of the misconceptions of religious concepts among second prep grade students and to prepare a proposed program using the meta-cognitive strategies supported by web-quest to address the misconception of some religious concepts and to develop some critical thinking skills. In addition, it identifies the effectiveness of the proposed program in addressing the misunderstanding of some religious concepts and developing some critical thinking skills of second prep grade students. The study was concluded with the most important findings.

Keywords:

The study was concluded with the most important findings.

Published In: